

OPENTV POWERS HIGH DEFINITION TV FOR NTV-PLUS, RUSSIA'S LEADING DTH PLATFORM

OpenTV's Core2 Chosen to Deliver Ultimate High Definition DTH Experience

San Francisco, Calif., May 8, 2007 - OpenTV Corp. (NASDAQ GM: OPTV), a leading provider of solutions for the delivery of advanced digital television and cross platform interactive services, today announced that NTV-Plus, Russia's first and only direct-to-home satellite TV operator, will launch high definition television services using OpenTV's advanced digital television solutions.

NTV-Plus, owned by Gazprom-Media, delivers over 90 television channels to its 560,000 digital television subscribers. The solution delivered by OpenTV includes OpenTV Core2™ for High Definition Television (HDTV) and supports both high definition and standard definition channels broadcast in MPEG-4 and MPEG-2 using DVB-S2. The operator's launch, on Thomson set-top boxes using the ST7100 chipset and Viaccess Conditional Access, is expected in the second quarter of 2007. It is further expected that OpenTV Core2 will support high definition PVR for NTV-Plus in the future.

"As part of our vision to make the best use of opportunities offered by modern digital technologies, NTV-Plus is committed to offering high definition television to our viewers," said Dmitry Samokhin, CEO of NTV-Plus. "It is only natural that we would partner with a company that shares our vision. OpenTV's Core2 and associated advanced digital television solutions make it possible for us to deliver a more compelling viewing experience for all of our subscribers across Russia."

Ben Bennett, OpenTV's Senior Vice President and General Manager, EMEA, added, "We are pleased that NTV-Plus, the leading DTH platform in Russia, has chosen OpenTV's Core2 technology to help deliver the ultimate HD viewing experience to its subscribers. We look forward to further supporting the future goals of NTV-Plus with additional solutions and services."
